

Nataly Dahary

is the director of community initiatives at the Beit Prat Israeli Midrasha. Previously, Nataly served as the director of Beit Prat Tel Aviv, a community Beit Midrash (study hall) that seeks to give voice to different elements within Jewish society, inspire curiosity, and promote interpersonal trust in interactions and conversations with others. A founding member of the Adva Community in Jerusalem, Nataly is an advocate for autonomous marriage in Israel, inspired by halakhic rulings issued by Sephardic and Eastern rabbinical authorities in cases of get (Jewish writ of divorce) refusal and agunot (the phenomenon of Jewish women being trapped in halakhic marriages). Nataly holds a master's degree in education from the Hebrew University's Milton School of Jewish Education and a bachelor's degree in political science and education, with an emphasis on socio-educational leadership, from the Hebrew University. A native of Kfar Saba, Nataly resides in the Kfar Saba region.

Guy Barak

serves as the director of diversity, partnerships, and inclusion at Beit Berl College, in conjunction with the 'Social Cohesion Initiative'. A certified educator, Guy works as a group facilitator and manages and directs projects that promote cooperation and connection between different sectors of the population. Beyond this, Guy also founded and manages the startup TARASA, a social platform for sharing memories. He holds a bachelor's degree in education from Beit Berl College and a master's degree in Jewish History from Tel Aviv University. A resident of Kfar Saba, Guy is married to Sophie and the proud father of Zoe, Louis, and Anton.

Sokina Mahmoud Taoon

serves as a community organizer at 'Hand in Hand', the center for integrated Jewish-Arab education in schools in the Galilee. A social and communal activist with a wealth of experience in fomenting social change, Sokina is a member of the national board of the 'Omdim B'yahad' movement, and an active member of the 'Manhigut Yisraelit Meshutefet' nonprofit organization, as well as a member of the think tank at 'Sipur Hakaya', a nonprofit organization. Previously, Sokina taught citizenship in schools and served as the local coordinator for the prevention of violence, drugs, and alcohol in the school system. Sokina holds a bachelor's degree in political science and master's degree in public policy, with a specialty in local government. Born in Dahara, Sokina currently lives in the village of Kaukab Abu al-Hija.
